1. BACKGROUND INFORMATION

As of January 2022, Caritas Switzerland (CACH) implements the project "Municipal Action for Reintegration and Diaspora" (MARDI), financed by the Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation, the Principality of Liechtenstein and Caritas Switzerland, in co-financing with the Ministry of Regional Development.

The MARDI project has its main objective, as follows:

The municipalities of Kosovo are perceived as places of positive socio-economic development, utilizing the potential and strong experience of repatriated persons, returnees, foreigners, ethnic minorities and the diaspora.

For this purpose, the project will support the strengthening of the capacities of local administrations and business to manage migration and (re)integration. CACH aims to fully achieve the project goals by engaging and working closely with key stakeholders in at least 10 municipalities of Kosovo.

The three main outcomes of the MARDI project are as follows:

- 1. Municipal and non-governmental actors improve their capacities and coordination to better address challenges in the fields of migration and (re)integration management;*
- 2. Local Capacities are developed and strengthened to provide individual support and to facilitate the sustainable (re)integration of repatriated persons, refugees and asylum seekers;*
- 3. Diaspora know-how and financial capital are utilized for economic development of Kosovar municipalities;*

This call is specifically related to the second outcome Development and strengthening of local capacities to provide individual support and facilitate the sustainable (re)integration of repatriated persons, refugees and asylum seekers.

The majority of Repatriated Persons (RP), but also refugees and asylum seekers who have acquired the status of international protection, return or arrive, respectively, in Kosovo without having sufficient financial means. These people must rely on their ambitions to become skilled and generate income, either through vocational training, on-the-job training, employment or self-employment. Otherwise, many RPs and foreigners will fail to (re)-integrate, which makes their life even more difficult after return or after involuntary leave of their countries of origin.

Only a limited number of RPs, especially those who have stayed for a longer period in Western Europe, have had the opportunity to acquire skills and accumulate funds, which can help them find work or become self-employed and (re)integrate easily into the society they have returned to.

Assuming that the majority of RPs and foreigners who intend to (re)integrate into Kosovar society will have the same limited abilities in terms of creating economic stability, they need institutional support in terms of counselling, access to vocational training that allows them to either become part of the skilled workforce or successfully operate their own business, support in job training and long-term employment. It is considered that further training and short-term financial support will increase their opportunities in the labour market and will make their (re)integration in society and especially economic (re)integration more sustainable.

CACH, respectively the MARDI project aims to connect the target groups with existing vocational training programs and support them if necessary. In addition, the project will actively profile these persons, which will then be used to match these profiles with employers active in the market, in order to include those who will be eligible in the labour market through the on-the-job training and/or job placement (employment) measures.

2. OBJECTIVE OF THE CALL
